Recruitment, Promotion and Retention of Marginalized Groups facilitated by

Robin Parker

Beyond Diversity Resource Center

This interactive workshop explores approaches for improving the hiring, retention, and promotion of persons from marginalized groups in the modern, post-affirmative action era. Emphasis is on research-based strategies and anti-oppression principles that human resource practitioners can use to accomplish the stated goal.

Robin Parker is Executive Director of the Beyond Diversity Resource Center and facilitates diversity training for individuals, businesses, educational institutions, human relations commissions and police agencies; sponsors conferences on cultural diversity and community dialogue; and lectures extensively about the need for individual and community intervention in solving the problems of racism, bigotry and prejudice. He is the former Deputy Attorney General of the New Jersey Division of Criminal Justice and former Chief of the Office of Bias Crime and Community Relations.
